

Mado Kara Mieru
(Through The Window I See)

JAPANESE

Instructional audio file by Satoko Valko

- In general: the [r] sound
In Japanese, [r] is pronounced between the English 'L' and 'R'. So it is a light and smooth [r] sound, as opposed to the strong [r] in French or Russian.
- 1st paragraph: ichirin
FYI, there is a muted close [ŋ] sound at the end this word that becomes distinctive at a slow paste (transforming this word into a 4 syllables word). When spoken at a regular paste or sung, it goes away and you only hear in the resonance of the 3rd syllable [in].
- 4th paragraph: yomei
Although this word contains 3 syllables, it is pronounced in 2 syllable yo-mei.